Primary 7 have settled well into their new classroom. They have created some art pieces to display, such as origami churches and impressive self portraits. They have had the chance to spend some afternoons with their buddies and have been excellent role models. They will soon begin spending some break times with their buddies to get to know them better.

Primary 7 have started their PEBL theme. This term we will be learning all about the 1960s. We will be looking for help from family members to learn more about this exciting decade.

In literacy, we have started a new novel called 'The Breadwinner.' This is a gripping story set in Afghanistan, following life under Taliban rule. We have written Information Reports about Malala Yousafzai and will write about Rosa Parks next. We are studying the poem/song 'A Change is Gonna' Come' by Sam Cooke which has similar themes to the novel.

In RE, P7 are learning about Creation. They have also attended Mass on the Feast of the Assumption.

Mrs Magennis will teach the class for STEM each week.

What we are doing next?

We are looking forward to welcoming family members to our Come to My Classroom event and showing you our learning environment. We will begin preparations for fundraising on St Matthew's Day.
